Hints and Notes
• Please remember to cite your sources properly. If you use a direct quote from a source, you must place it in quotation marks and provide a citation. This holds for web pages as well as paper documents. If you rephrase a source you have read in your own words, you must also provide a citation.
• If you have trouble finding sources for your topic, please consult with me, but do so only after you have used the resources available to you, especially the DePaul library.
